When to Sell Stocks

When it meets price targets determined by professional institutions, and when you are advanced enough, your own price targets, which can be determined by assessing the value of the stock, and predicting the value of the stock in which growth will stop/reverse

Another time to sell stocks is when you sense faltering financial metrics, fundamentals, and negative internal, external, and social sentiment

Ex: Company xyz is having lower performance, is losing market share, and is being dominated by its competitors, and is going through lawsuits, you should sell
